

2020/21

Our year in numbers

Covid-19 put Extratime's physical clubs and holiday schemes on hold for large parts of the year, prompting us to deliver services in new and creative ways. We quickly launched a virtual offer, through which we supported hundreds of children and young people with SEND and their families.

"We were impressed with how quickly the team adapted to the virtual world and set up a range of new sessions... You have kept the children at the centre of what you do."

"Your online Lockdown programme made THE difference to 2020."

How we raised funds

"The 1:1 Zoom sessions were massively helpful to us at such an awful time. They gave us some much needed structure to our endless time at home and helped our child, who was going through serious mental health issues."

Our partnerships

This year our strong partnerships with colleagues across the voluntary sector, schools and local authorities were more valuable than ever in creating a support network to tackle the challenges of Covid-19. Our solid commissioner and funder relationships gave us the flexibility to pivot services from physical to online (and back again), and we worked with trusted activity partners to develop a successful and popular online workshop programme. We are hugely grateful to everyone who has helped us continue to be here for families throughout the pandemic.

Involving young people

Although the safety of children, young people and colleagues was our absolute priority this year, we also remained committed to supporting young people with SEND to have a voice in the decisions that affect them. We worked with partners across Brighton & Hove and West Sussex to help young people to be heard in local decisions, and to represent the needs of families during the pandemic.
